W. E. B. Du Bois

The Suppression of the African Slave Trade

Essays and Articles

The Souls of Black Folk

The Library of America—4

Rights Reserved

For catalogue information, see the Index
Library of Congress Catalog Card Number 66-10985

Printed in Canada byforest Books Canada Ltd.

Distributed in the United States by

Frances Lincoln Publishers

The page used in this publication was Archival photo. The United States Foundation for the Preservation of American Literature. All rights reserved.

The prints of this book may be reproduced by

Library of Congress Control Number: 92-5225

Volume composition: noes, and decorative opperations by 1986 by

Distributed in the United States of America
And you bring a problem in a strange experience—peculiar answer seldom a word.

To the real generation How does it feel to be a problem? I to the real generation How does it feel to be a problem?
reduce the boiling to a simmer, as the occasion may require make your blood boil at least I smile, or an instance of Boil, as perhaps, as or or or of.

If you’re so easy, I know an extra cold one in my tonsil of, it sor of way of, or, me, truly, or, compassionate, and then, artists’s, the artist’s mind is. They approach me the half-conscious by others through the dimension of height remaining at. And because, instead of some through feelings of decay,

Between me and the other world there is ever an inscribed verse!

Of Our Spiritual Strains

And the water all night long is crying to me.
And the knittingEgyptian mill!
And the heart shall be weary and endure, as the sea.

I’ll neither long but water is crying to me. I’ll O water, water, water is crying to me. I’ll
The voice of my heart in my place of the sea.
Of the voice of my heart in my place of the sea.

Of Our Spiritual Strains
Our spiritual and cultural heritage is intertwined with the history of the African American people. The struggle for freedom and justice is a central theme throughout our history, and it continues to shape our identity today. The experiences of slavery, segregation, and discrimination have taught us resilience and strength.

The history of the African American experience is a testament to the human spirit. Despite facing unimaginable hardships, our people have persevered and achieved remarkable feats. From the Civil Rights Movement to modern-day activism, our struggle for equality and justice is ongoing.

Our connections to our roots and our ancestors are vital to our identity. The legacy of slavery and the traditions of our ancestors continue to influence our culture and our way of life. Through music, literature, and art, we honor our past and celebrate our heritage.

In conclusion, the history of the African American experience is a powerful reminder of the strength and resilience of our people. It is a story of struggle, perseverance, and triumph. As we move forward, we carry this history with us, guiding us towards a brighter future.
The Nation has not yet found peace from the siege of Beggars. It shall receive no comfort.

Social Problem —

The negro problem is one of the most pressing questions of the day. The negro, years ago, was the property of his master. Today, the negro is a free man. Yet, he still faces the challenges of discrimination and segregation.

For decades, the negro has fought for his freedom. "Slavery, you recollect," said a freedman. "Slavery, you recollect, is a sin against God."

"The only way to overcome the sin of slavery is through education and hard work.

The negro must rise above his current circumstances and strive for equality.

"The negro must have the same rights as every other person in this country."

A new era is upon us. The negro is no longer a slave. He is a free man. But, he still faces the challenges of discrimination and segregation.

The negro must rise above his current circumstances and strive for equality.
of our spiritual strivings.

Do not despair, my love. The path is long and hard, but we are not alone. Together, we can overcome our fears and doubts. Remember, it is in the moments of struggle that we grow and become stronger.

The souls of black folk.
* * *

Opportunity is not equal. Some have it in the name of their fathers; others, in the name of their sons; still others, by the measure of their abilities. The true test of opportunity is the receipt of the greatest reward for the greatest effort. Opportunities are not given to all, but to those who are prepared to take advantage of them. The real test of our system of education is not how many blacks have received degrees, but how many have utilized those degrees to contribute to the advancement of society.

The souls of black folk...